TRENDS IN ALCOHOL AND TOBACCO MARKETS: EMPHASIS ON GROWTH AND TRANSPARENCY

The alcohol and tobacco markets are currently undergoing a serious phase of transformation, which gives businesses a chance to find new growth points.

In recent years, more and more attention has been paid to protecting domestic producers and increasing the competitiveness of Russian alcoholic beverages, including wine products. In fact, the industry obtains various grants and benefits, including tax.

In addition, the current foreign economic situation and changes in the importation of alcoholic beverages, including the departure of foreign brands, should have opened up even more opportunities for Russian producers to realise their potential. However, despite the expectations in terms of import substitution, in fact, the import of wine products has increased significantly, while domestic production is declining.

The changes also affect the tobacco market. This year, state regulation of the tobacco sector is being introduced within the framework of a separate industry law, which should help reduce illicit trafficking. The structure of demand for tobacco products is uneven: while some segments are showing growth, real consumer demand in other categories is slowing down. All this contributes to the development of new business patterns. What are the reasons for the current processes in the wine market? What conclusions should be drawn and what steps should be taken not to stop the process of import substitution?

Will new forms of control allow to “whitewash” the tobacco market? What should regulators and representatives of the alcohol and tobacco industry focus on in the current situation?

THE TRAJECTORY OF REGIONAL FINANCE DEVELOPMENT IN MODERN CONDITIONS

The swift change of conditions is an important incentive for the growth of relations between the federation and the regions. At the same time, special focus is paid to regional development related to the implementation of economic and infrastructural projects of the regions. In fact, measures are being taken to limit the growth of the state debt of the regions and to strengthen responsibility for violating the budgetary legislation of the Russian Federation.

In order to understand how the system of inter-budgetary relations should evolve in the new world, it is necessary to answer a number of key questions.

INCREASING THE ECONOMIC POTENTIAL OF REGIONS: METHODS AND TOOLS

The events of recent years have significantly transformed the environment in which the global and Russian economies operate. Moreover, while previously the issue of increasing economic potential was considered as something that gives additional competitive advantages, today it is a prerequisite for further development.

Current challenges have limited the resources that are usually available, while ambitious tasks to ensure social obligations, improve the socio-economic situation and improve the quality of life have not gone away. To achieve them, we need a solid foundation for economic growth.

What approaches and tools help Russian regions in the new conditions? How to ensure the sustainability of tax revenues? Where to look for internal reserves in the current constraints? The session will be devoted to the best approaches and practices for the development of economic potential.

IN SEARCH FOR A NEW BALANCE: RUSSIAN FINANCIAL AND ECONOMIC SYSTEM DURING WORLDWIDE TRANSFORMATION

Today, the world is in the process of changing the global economic order. Economic and financial fragmentation, the predominance of geopolitical factors over economic ones, the emphasis on self-sufficiency - these are trends that represent only the beginning of major financial and economic transformations. Russia and other countries still have a lot to do to adapt to the new design of the global economic system. What it will look like and how the transformation processes will proceed depends not only on what tools of impact will have to be used to flexibly and effectively respond to changes "at the moment", but also on what "margin of safety" should be formed for the future. Will the current "breakdown" of the current structure lead to a reduction of risks or, conversely, provoke new vulnerabilities? What global transformations in the economy are the most significant now? What characteristics will the new model of the future world economic order have? What goals does Russia put before itself in this transformational period? What mechanisms to provide stability, monetary and economic sovereignty should be implemented in Russia right now?

NEW TRENDS IN INTERNATIONAL TAX RELATIONS IN THE MODERN WORLD

The transformation of the Russian economy is connected, among other things, with the restructuring of international cooperation in the tax sphere.

One of the key areas for Russia in this area today is the revision of tax agreements with countries. Work on this was intensified in 2021, when the process of correcting agreements with Cyprus, Malta and Luxembourg was launched.

In the current foreign economic conditions, Russia has also suspended some provisions of the agreement with several countries. At the same time, the main vector of work in this area is the development of tax cooperation with new partners. So, in 2023, a tax agreement was concluded with Oman. Negotiations are underway with the UAE and Malaysia.

At the same time, the process of forming a new global tax order continues, the key element of which is the introduction of international corporate income tax reforms (Pillar 1 and Pillar 2) with the establishment of a global minimum tax rate for them. A global transition to low-carbon development has also been initiated.

What measures should Turkey take, based on its economic and tax systems, to protect its financial interests and prevent inequitable competitive conditions for companies? How will the change in priorities on the international tax agenda affect economic development?

NEW SOLUTIONS IN PUBLIC FINANCE MANAGEMENT: IDEAS FROM THE YOUTH COMMUNITY

Global changes in the economy and society require new approaches both to public finance management and to building a new corporate ethics in the financial market, forming a new system of values and attitudes towards the consumer of financial services, as well as a new financial culture of consumers themselves.

In the era of turbulence, the role of youth as a driving force for change is important. Are young financiers ready to join the economic agenda with new initiatives and technological solutions?

During the discussion, representatives of the youth community of the financial sector together with experts will discuss the following issues:

How to take into account the key demands of the state, business and society in the development of the financial market and budgeting?

PROCUREMENT SYSTEM UNDER PRESSURE OF SANCTIONS: RESULTS AND PROSPECTS

The results of recent years have shown that the procurement system is resistant to various threats, including increased sanctions pressure. At the same time, in the current economic situation, ensuring coordinated interaction of all members of the contract system remains relevant.

TAX POLICY: TRANSFORMATION FOR SOLIDARITY

The tax system is the most important economic regulator. At the same time, tax policy is a derivative of budgetary policy. Now the budget process is actively underway; indeed, the draft federal budget for 2024-2026 is being formed. Expenditures, revenues, as well as the level of budget deficit and sources of its financing are determined for the coming three-year period.

In the conditions of budget deficit, a strategic approach to adjusting of tax policy is needed, since this is the main source of revenue for the budget system..

How do the government, business and independent experts assess the additional tax adjustments that are necessary as part of the preparation of the budget for the upcoming three-year period? What changes in the tax system should we expect in the near future and how will they affect the country's economy?

RUSSIAN DEBT MARKET V. 2.0

The Russian debt market is undergoing a fundamental transformation. External infrastructure constraints for the Russian financial sector required the adoption of a set of decisions aimed at ensuring that payments are brought to investors and the restoration of secondary circulation of securities. Thus, the regulator has created a proxy ecosystem for financial instruments blocked in foreign infrastructure.

Despite the temporary inconveniences for market players during a number of operational procedures, the current situation gave an impetus to the strategic development of the domestic financial sector.

What is the new structure of the Russian debt market? What tasks for the development of the national market will have to be solved first of all? How do we want to see the Russian debt market in 5, 10, 20 years? A view from regulators, investors, issuers.

RESTRUCTURING TO AVOID BANKRUPTCY: HOW TO ASSESS SOLVENCY AND WHERE TO PUT COMMA

The issues of business preservation and restoration are becoming more and more important. When making a decision on granting the possibility of deferral of payment or bankruptcy of the debtor, it is important not to make a mistake in assessing its solvency.

How to assess the solvency of the counterparty? What are the risks of continuing existing contracts? How can I help the debtor to restore his solvency? The business is constantly searching for answers to these questions, forming scoring systems and analytical tools.

These issues are no less relevant for the state. How to determine the actual need for support measures and choose the right way to provide it? Is there an objective mechanism for assessing solvency that would be affected by the parties to the relationship?
